
4. Risks of a vaccine reaction

Some people may have a mild allergic reaction to a vaccine. This is usually a rash or hives. These reactions are usually mild and go away on their own. However, some people may have a severe allergic reaction. This is a medical emergency. If you or your child has a severe allergic reaction, call 9-1-1 immediately.

()

For more information, visit www.cdc.gov/vaccines/imz/immunization/immunizationFAQs.html.

For more information, visit www.cdc.gov/vaccines/imz/immunization/immunizationFAQs.html.

5. What if there is a serious problem?

If you or your child has a serious allergic reaction to a vaccine, call 9-1-1 immediately. If you or your child has a severe allergic reaction, call 9-1-1 immediately.

For more information, visit www.cdc.gov/vaccines/imz/immunization/immunizationFAQs.html.

()

www.cdc.gov/vaccines/imz/immunization/immunizationFAQs.html 1-800-822-7967. A

A

6. The National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program

()

()

()

www.hhs.gov/vaccine-injury/ / www.hhs.gov/vaccine-injury/

1-800-338-2382

7. How can I learn more?

()

()